

Missouri Seeks Hay Up North

Officials and Farm Leaders Go to Bid On Crop to Feed Stricken Livestock

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—Missouri sent officials and farm leaders to three North Central states today in a desperate bid for hay to tide this state's drought stricken livestock through the fall and winter.

The situation was described as this tragically simple:

Either Missouri cattle get hay to supplement federally-subsidized feeds through the coming months or the herds must go on the auction block—as many already have.

And if the herds are sold it will mean destitution for many livestock raisers and dairymen, particularly in the southern half of the state where they've been plagued by drought for two successive years.

Those stockmen who don't go completely under in such circumstance, still would have a ten year, uphill struggle to build their herds again in this state where dairying and beef cattle raising constitute major parts of the farm economy.

L. C. Carpenter, state commissioner of agriculture, said the deadline for fall pastures is past. There isn't a chance for that saving factor anymore. And cattle can't go through the winter on corn or other grains alone, he said. They need the roughage that hay or ensilage would provide.

It's hay or else now.

Carpenter told newsmen in Gov. Phil M. Donnelly's press conference today what the state hopes to do.

He said teams of state representatives would scour South Dakota, Wisconsin and Minnesota, searching desperately for hay that can be bought at a low enough price to make it reasonable to ship it here for fall and winter feeding.

And price is important. The livestock men have been pleading for immediate action. But federal government representatives say it isn't likely that hay will be included among those feeds on which federal help can be expected.

So the feeders are turning to the state. But Missouri's governor has only a $25,000 emergency fund to use for any agricultural emergency. Donnelly said the state can't go into the hay buying business with that slim sum.

He said the best the state can do is to find the hay and hold it for the raisers themselves to buy and ship back home.

That's the purpose of the teams being hurried north.

Donnelly said South Dakota has more than 270,000 tons of excess hay and both Wisconsin and Minnesota have surpluses, too.

The question now is one of price: Can cattle owners afford to pay the price for hay to feed cattle which once were worth $200 each but now have slid to about $65?

And the alternative is almost as bitter. Can they afford to sell out?

C. of C. Members In 1-Day Drive On Wednesday

The big one-day Chamber of Commerce membership drive will start at 8 p. m. Wednesday with a breakfast at the Bothwell Hotel and a large number of active Chamber of Commerce members ready to go out and contact other business firms with the idea of selling memberships.

The Chamber of Commerce is proud of its record of accomplishment in helping to make the community outstanding and points out it is the only organization working daily to bring new business and payrolls to the community. It is a group of local business and professional men and women organized to take instant action on any matter which vitally affects the business, welfare or general interest of the city and territory. It seeks desirable new industries, conventions, tourists, business and home-seekers. It publicizes the town.

There are the things which members will take as their selling points to prospective members Wednesday because they themselves believe in the organization and what it does for them and their town.

Fall Fell Fine

Today was the first full day of the autumn season and it fell in fine. Except for the absence of moisture, a finer fall day could not be experienced. Last night was chilly, today was nippy, but both were appreciated by folk who less than a week ago were perspiring in 90-plus degree heat.

Fair and warmer tonight and Wednesday. Low tonight near 50 and high Wednesday in the 60s.

The temperature at 7 a. m. was 40; 70 at 1 p. m., and 72 at 2 p. m.

One year ago today high 71, low 47. Two years ago high 67, low 43, rainfall .07 inch.

Grocery Clerk and Mail Carrier Honored by the C. of C.—

Courtesy Awards to Mrs. Donna Hill and Bill Faulkner

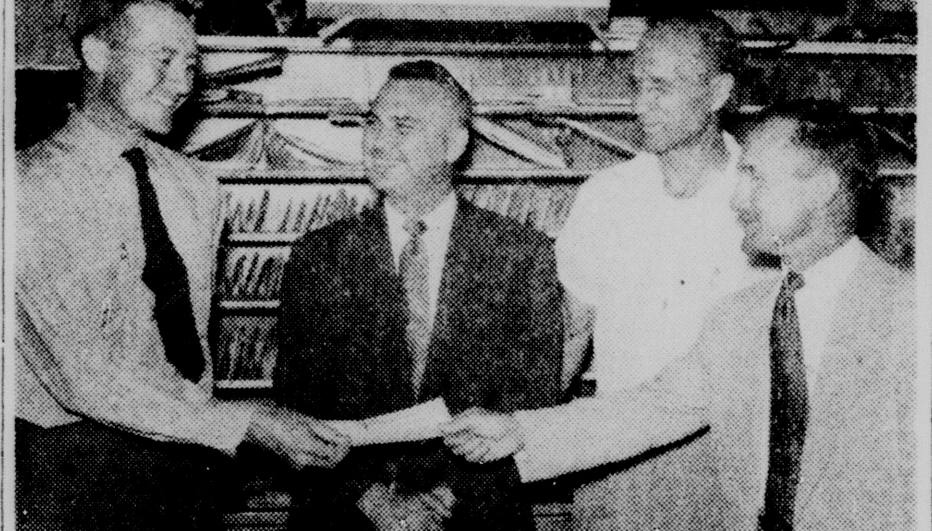

The Courtesy Awards, given each quarter by the Chamber of Commerce to persons selected by a secret committee for their friendly and courteous manner of meeting the public, were presented Monday afternoon to Mrs. Donna Hill, wife of James F. Hill, 606 West 16th, and to William C. Faulkner, 1213 South Speed.

Mrs. Hill, who was born in Pittsburg, Mo., but came to Sedalia a year after she was married, is employed in the Welch's West Side Market, owned and operated by Landon Welch.

Donna has raised a family of four children, a daughter, Frances, who is now Mrs. Joseph G. Hardy and three sons: Cecil, who lives in Schenectady, N. Y., Norman, who lives in Kansas City, and Billy, who is in Korea. This is Billy's second time in Korea. He is a first lieutenant in the Army and he landed there in the second time on June 9, when things were hot in Korea. The quieting down of things in Korea was the best thing Donna Hill had happened to her in a long time—the next best thing was the winning of the courtesy award.

She flashed the smile and friendliness greeting that had won the award

Councilman Orders Trees Cut To Protect Children's Lives

Three Trees In Parking at 16th and Warren To Be Removed; Council Passes Ordinances And Lets Bids on Four New Sewer Projects

(By D. Kelly Scruton)

"The life of a child is worth more than three trees," Councilman C. L. Kelley stated during the regular City Council meeting held Monday night. The remark came when Kelley referred to the removal of the three evergreen trees on the parking between the two 16th Street drives at the intersection of 16th and Warren.

Some time ago Councilman Kelley called attention to the traffic hazard created because of these trees and ordered an investigation. The Garden Clubs, which have been interested in the parking beautification, were notified of the suggestion. At that time, it was indicated there would be something done, but as nothing has been done to remedy it, it was suggested it should be taken up by the Twelve Mile Road District.

It was pointed out this had already been called to the attention of the Road District and W. M. Mc Gee, superintendent, said he wouldn't cut them. Councilman Kelley then remarked that a few days ago a child was nearly struck by a car because of the blind created by the trees. He said, "Inasmuch as the Road District will not assume the responsibility of their removal, the Street and Alley Dept. of the City will, and I order them cut down."

"It isn't that we are against the beauty of the trees, but they cannot remain at an intersection as a traffic hazard they now are. The welfare of the people is at stake when passing this intersection, and the life of a child is worth more than the three trees."

Four Ordinances Passed

Four ordinances were given final passage at the meeting: Ordinance for curb and guttering on 14th from Collins to Marvin; Ordinance granting city approval to the regular City Parkview addition, to sell lots 15-19 inclusive, 22-28 inclusive of block 8, Parkview addition, for $900 to Willard T. Dorflinger; ordinance granting approval to Charles Gentry, trustee, to sell lots 1 and 2, block 8, Parkview addition, for $150 to George T. and Flora Wiley.

A new wholesale beer license to Milton Jones, president of a company which recently purchased the Country Club agency, was approved.

Sewer Bids Opened

Four sewer district bids were opened and accepted by the City Council. James W. Atkinson Construction Co. was awarded all four contracts and the firm was the only bidder. The projects are: 69-A, bid of $2,107, engineer's estimate was $3,147; District 95, bid $3,646, engineer's estimate was $3,676; District 96 bid was $2,194, engineer's estimate was $2,194; District 97, bid was $1,207.50, engineer's estimate was $1,226.

Ordinances introduced for the first reading were: to authorize the mayor and city clerk to sell lot 8, block 10, of the Parkview addition to Emmett Carl Box for $75; accepting the seal coating of the city streets this past summer by the W. J. Menefee Construction Co.; accepting the work and materials in Sewer District 92, completed by the J. W. Atkinson Construction Co.; authorizing the approval to Charles Gentry, trustee, to sell lot 8, block 8 of the Parkview addition for $75.

New Lights Coming

Councilman John Carroll presented a petition for street lights on State Fair Blvd. from Main to Third. Councilman Dr. Ira White, announced this area had already been placed on the list with the Missouri Public Service Co. Councilman Aubrey Case stated that a company spokesman informed him the engineering work for light in the western section of the group from the Chamber of Commerce entered the store. She had no idea that they were there to give her a check, she thought they were customers or perhaps had come in to see Mr. Welch. When she was told she had won the award she smiled still more, but she didn't stop waiting for the customer who had just come up with a basket load of groceries.

The customer was a new bride and the conversation for the moment was around her recent marriage. Donna went on happily checking the groceries and then she said, looking at the new bride: "This is my wedding anniversary." And so on her wedding anniversary she received the Courtesy Award.

During the time her children were growing up, Donna Hill didn't work, that is at a store. She did plenty of work at home for three boys and a girl kept her busy. Her husband was a machinist at the Missouri Pacific Shops and is now retired. It was during World War II that Donna went to work. At that time, when there were so many men in service, stores needed women to work and help out so she did what she felt was a duty to her community.

When the war was over and the men came back she quit work because she thought the jobs should go to the young men returning home. Then Landon Welch needed her again in his store and she went back. She has been working for him seven years, and she likes it. She likes waiting on the people who come in the store and they like her—otherwise she would never have won the courtesy award.

The young man who won the award this quarter William C. Faulkner, is a mail carrier. He has just about the longest route of all the carriers, said Maurice Hogan, postmaster, and Ed Brummett, mail foreman and supervisor of all carriers, agreed and added, "Yes, and the route has growing pains, too."

Bill Faulkner was born in Warrensburg, but came to Sedalia at an early age. He went through school here and was graduated from Smith-Cotton High School. He is the son of Mrs. Mildred Hogan, a teacher at Smith-Cotton, and in June 1946 he was married to Mary Schrankler, a pretty and popular Sedalia girl. They have one little boy, Jerry, 4½ years old.

After graduating from high school, Bill went to Park College at Parkville for a couple of years. Then he spent about a year in Dallas, Tex., and came back to Sedalia where he attended Central Business College. He went to work at the MKT Shops as a clerk in the storekeeper department about two years. Then came World War II. He was in the Army about 42 months, in the Signal Corps, and spent a year in India. He didn't see any Sedalians while over there except Ellsworth Green, who lived next door to the street from him at that time.

When the war was over he came back home and again went to work for the Katy, where he was employed for the next two years.

In February 1949, he went to work at the Post Office and has been on this particular route for the past 14 months. Bill likes carrying mail. He has made many friends along the way, not only on this route, but on others he has carried, too. He has more than 500 stops and sometimes he is slowed a little by chats he has along the way.

He hears all the news, knows about the various members of the families, he has made friends with most of the children, although a few still shy away—they are afraid of the mail carrier—and he has made friends with the dogs. He feels that the most important thing he can do is make friends with the dogs. It just isn't good for a mail carrier to have unfriendly dogs on his route. "Things have sure quieted down on the route," said Bill. "Since school started, you can sure notice a difference."

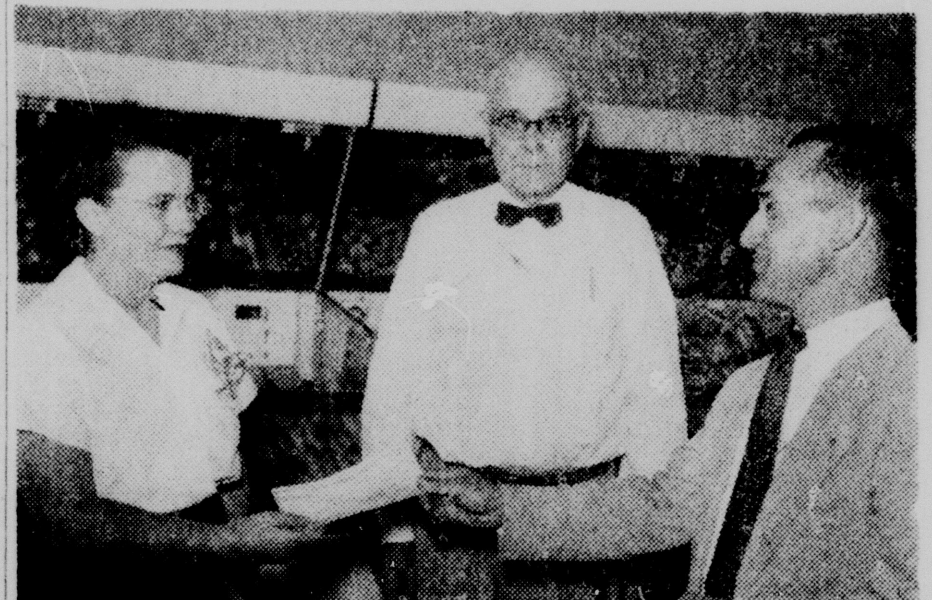

"This is a mighty nice place to work," said Bill, as he glanced around the post office building. "Everybody is happy with the postmaster, Maurice Hogan." Ed Brummett is grand to work for, and then there is Clennie Byler, superintendent of mails, and Guy Johnson, assistant postmaster. Well, there just isn't anybody here who isn't nice to work with."

When Charles Hofheins, a member of the Courtesy Award committee, walked in with the check, accompanied by a photographer and a reporter, and Bill Faulkner was called in by Maurice Hogan, he didn't know what was up. Previously Hogan had told Faulkner that he wanted him to stay there because he wanted to talk to him about something. Bill thought there must be something wrong, he didn't know what he had done, but he felt there must have been some kind of a complaint about him.

Mr. Hofheins, who was delivering Courtesy Award checks for the first time, didn't know that Bill hadn't been informed and as he talked, without mentioning what he was really there for, kidding Bill a little, the young carrier's face took on an expression of wonderment. He would look at Mr. Hofheins and then at Maurice, whom he expected and hoped would give him a little clue—but he didn't. Other men in the Post Office were having a great time watching—but finally Hogan came to his rescue and said that Bill didn't know what it was all about. Bill was very happy over the check and happy that he had been selected for the honor which people along his route say is well earned.

Durkin Claims Ike Broke T-H Agreement

Retains Personal Regard for President Despite Resignation

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Former Secretary of Labor Martin Durkin said today President Eisenhower personally backed out on an agreement with him on proposals to amend the Taft-Hartley labor law. But Durkin said he still considers Eisenhower a friend.

Durkin told the annual AFL convention he quit Eisenhower's cabinet two weeks ago "as a matter of principle" because of the claimed broken agreement, yet retained "the warmest personal feelings of friendship" for the President.

The 39-year-old chief of the AFL Plumbers Union, a Democrat, outlined his story of the events leading up to his resignation in a speech prepared for convention delegates.

Durkin said Eisenhower agreed to the amendments in a conference in New York City Aug. 19. But later at a White House session on Sept. 10, Durkin said, "he informed me he had changed his position since the New York meeting and that he could no longer go along with the 19 amendments."

Eisenhower has never answered Durkin's charges of a broken pledge. The amendments were regarded as considerably more favorable to unions than to employers. However, Durkin said he considered them fair and, if Eisenhower had presented them to Congress, a fulfillment of the President's campaign pledge to change the law.

The White House has arranged for Vice President Richard Nixon to speak to the AFL convention tomorrow, bringing a personal message from the President.

In his Boston speech last night Eisenhower said an administration study of T-H law changes is continuing and that he will have recommendations for the next session of Congress to make "more secure our industrial peace and productivity, more clear and explicit the rights of labor, its unions and its employers."

Soviet Purging Two More Former Top Officials

LONDON (AP)—The premier of the Georgian Soviet Republic—home of Joseph Stalin and ousted Red police boss Lavrenty P. Beria—was added today to the growing list of Soviet purge victims. The first secretary of the republic's Communist Party also was fired.

The government radio in the republic's capital, Tiflis, announced that Premier B. M. Bakhradze had been replaced by "Comrade Galtshvili" and that "Comrade D. D. Merkulava" was dismissed as party secretary.

It was the second shakeup in the strategic Georgian Republic in three months and part of a continuing Kremlin purge of the subordinate republic governments begun after Beria's arrest was announced last June.

The radio said Bakhradze was ousted by a decree of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the republic.

US Wins Bar To UN Debate Over Neutrals

Lodge Says Problem Should Be Decided By Face-to-Face Talk

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The United States today won the first round of its fight to keep the U. N. General Assembly from reopening debate on the inclusion of neutral countries in the Korean peace conference.

Chief U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., however, said in a surprise statement that the representatives of the U. N. and the Communists at the conference might decide themselves whether they want to invite any non-belligerents.

Lodge also offered "in view of the urgency of the situation" to send a United States representative to Geneva, Honolulu or San Francisco to discuss arrangements with a representative of the Communists.

Soviet Delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky promptly turned down the U. S. proposals as a "chess move." British Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd said Vishinsky's reaction reminded him of the Soviet delegate's statement in Paris in 1951 when he said he stayed awake all night laughing at a Western disarmament plan. Lloyd reminded Vishinsky that he later regretted that statement.

After hearing this exchange, the Assembly's 15-member steering committee voted to reject a Soviet proposal that the Korean conference be put on the agenda as a separate item. The vote was two in favor, eleven against and one abstaining. Only Russia and Poland voted for inclusion of the item. India, sitting in the chair did not vote. Yugoslavia abstained.

Vishinsky had warned that rejection of his proposal might wreck any chances of agreement at the conference.

The Soviet delegate was expected to seek a reversal of this decision in the assembly itself, but appeared to have little chance. In any event, delegates agreed, the question can be brought up under a general item on the Korean problem.

In advancing his new position on the participation of neutrals, Lodge said:

"The question of whether any neutrals should be invited as the North Korean note declares, is a matter for agreement between both sides."

MIG Pilot Says Commies Send Fighters, Bombers to Korea

SEOUL (AP)—A young North Korean jet pilot who flew to freedom in a Russian-made MIG said today the Communists have flown jet fighters and propeller-driven bombers into Korea since the armistice in violation of truce terms.

The 22-year-old pilot, a senior lieutenant in the North Korean Air Force, told a news conference he did not know the Allies had offered $100,000 for a MIG when he landed his swept-wing fighter at a base near Seoul yesterday.

He said he fled from Communist Korea because "I did not want to stay there." He voiced hope that he could study in the United States.

The Air Force lost no time getting its prize MIG out of Korea. An official spokesman said the jet fighter was dismantled, crated and put aboard a big C124 Globemaster which left for an undisclosed destination tonight. Presumably the MIG ultimately will be put through exhaustive tests in the United States.

The smiling young pilot, clad in U. S. Army fatigues, also told newsmen:

Income Tax Cuts Coming But Excess Profits Tax Dies

Secretary of Treasury Humphrey Says Ten Percent Tax Slice Will Take Place at End Of Year; Profits Tax Expires December 31

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey said today the 10 per cent income tax cut will take place at the end of the year as scheduled, and also there will be no request for renewing the excess profits tax.

He said, in a speech for the convention of the American Bankers Association:

"The excess profits tax will expire Dec. 31, and there will be no request for renewal. At the same time an average of 10 per cent reduction in individual income taxes is scheduled to go into effect, and it will become effective."

Humphrey's statement to the bankers also stressed the need, in the light of the Russian threat, to exercise caution in cutting taxes and defense expenditures. He said there is a "real possibility of an atomic Pearl Harbor hanging directly over our heads."

This threat had caused some speculation that the scheduled tax reductions might not take place and that there might be some new form of taxation to raise defense money. President Eisenhower had said only last night in his Boston speech that no sacrifice was too burdensome for Americans determined to thwart "enemies of freedom equipped with the most terrible weapons of destruction."

Sen. George (D-Ga.) said earlier today he does not believe the Eisenhower administration will recommend a federal sales tax.

"I will be greatly surprised if the secretary of the Treasury comes up with such a proposal," he told newsmen.

George, former chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and long-time tax specialist, said he knew the Treasury was "nervous" about revenue it is scheduled to lose next year because of automatic tax cuts written into present law.

"With these losses, the Treasury 'may find itself obliged' to seek some new sources of revenue, the senator said."

But he declared he did not think Congress would be willing to impose a national sales tax except in some "extremely critical national emergency" leading to much higher military spending. If that occurred, only a sales levy would bring in the needed money quickly, George commented.

Symington Says US Falls Behind With Airpower

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) said today this country is "falling steadily behind the airpower buildup of the Soviet Union" because of administration cuts in air force funds.

The former air force secretary in the Truman administration said at the annual AFL convention that the new administration's defense officials have tried to minimize the cuts.

He said Secretary of State Dulles has promised the United States will meet any renewed Soviet aggression "with a bold show of military might" but reducing the air force budget by more than five billion dollars will make it hard to carry out the pledge.

Four More Army Veterans Returning

Scheduled to arrive Wednesday from the Far East, where they have been in military service, are four men on this area aboard the transport Marine Lynx out in at Seattle. They are: Sgt. Curtis A. Hart, Warsaw; Sgt. Richard J. Rohrbach, California; Cpl. Frankie D. Terry, Versailles and Cpl. Edgar Viebrook, Stover.

They are being sent to the National Veterans Affairs Administration for medical examination and then to their homes.

"Prospects for American agriculture are good," he declared. He said employment is high, consumers are demanding a good diet, and the population is increasing—all operating, he said, to form a sound basis for farming.

"Rural banks are faced with a wonderful opportunity to strengthen the rural economy," he said. Appealing for help in preserving "our free enterprise system," the secretary said that in recent years "our thinking people have become more and more concerned about the rapid trend toward government ownership."

"Too many Americans are calling on Washington to do for them what they should be willing to do for themselves," he said.

Brenton, a Des Moines, Iowa, banker, said "bankers must help remove the mystery that surrounds the maintaining of sound money."

The association president said that "much of the criticism of bankers in government is made by those who fail to realize that many of our problems in government are financial and it is logical to call on those who have made a success in the field of finance."

He suggested more bankers should be provided with education on national monetary and fiscal problems and that small bankers especially should "speak out" in interest of money policies which prevent inflation.

The generally optimistic tone of the convention was shadowed by forecasting of some let down from the present record level of economic activity.

ing not to be named, also told reporters he thinks there is no chance of enactment of a federal sales tax next year "if things continue to ride along as they are."

Ike Asks Bank Policies For All Americans

Speaks to Bankers And Pleas for Fair Plan On Finances

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower urged the American Bankers Association today to seek policies that are "sound for all Americans—not for just one class, group or segment, but for all."

The president received a tremendous ovation of applause, whistles and cheers from the 3,800 bankers and their wives who filled Constitution Hall for his brief message of welcome to their convention.

He thanked them for "splendid work in helping to sell and distribute the government's savings bonds to all people."

"With more than 40 million people owning more than 50 billion dollars worth of bonds, we know there is still an incentive and a determination to save—an incentive that is responsible for so many good things we enjoy," Eisenhower said.

Before the President's brief appearance Secretary of Agriculture Benson told the bankers that the nation's farm policy should shift away from what he called centralization of power and undue dependence on government. He told the delegates they are in position to help strengthen the rural economy.

"Your coming here brings to government a great opportunity for cooperative work in the field of soundness of money, its circulation and its use," Eisenhower said.

The President said his administration is not one "that thinks it has all the answers, or sits in an ivory tower of lonely isolation giving words or wisdom and orders which everyone must obey."

"We are here not only to do our duty in government but to learn," he said. "Through meetings such as yours we learn a lot."

The nation's problems, he went on, "are not to be solved only as each and all segments meet with each other, consult with each other, and arrive at truly American solutions—answers that are sound for all Americans, not for just one class, group or segment, but for all."

Benson said a new farm program based on the principles of economic freedom was needed. He said inadequacies of the present program included:

1. Failure to build farm markets at fair prices.
2. Interference with needed adjustments in farming.
3. Tendencies to price crops such as wheat and cotton out of world markets and dairy products out of domestic markets.

With incentives to provide farmers with incentives to progress.

Benson called upon the nation's bankers to "even with their customers' even when weather or economic conditions make debt repayment less favorable."

"Prospects for American agriculture are good," he declared. He said employment is high, consumers are demanding a good diet, and the population is increasing—all operating, he said, to form a sound basis for farming.

"Rural banks are faced with a wonderful opportunity to strengthen the rural economy," he said. Appealing for help in preserving "our free enterprise system," the secretary said that in recent years "our thinking people have become more and more concerned about the rapid trend toward government ownership."

"Too many Americans are calling on Washington to do for them what they should be willing to do for themselves," he said.

Horace Mann PTA Had 'V.I.P.' Theme At Last Friday's Meet

"V. I. P." (very important person) is the theme selected for Horace Mann PTA meetings this year. In keeping with that theme the first meeting of the year held Friday afternoon was devoted to meeting your V. I. P.'s, the teachers.

As this meeting was also a "get acquainted" affair each mother upon entering the building was met by an officer and had her name pinned on her.

Mrs. A. L. Brewer opened the meeting with the devotional. A gift was presented to the youngest mother, the oldest one and the one who had the most children. Delegates elected to attend the state convention were Mrs. Gene Herrick, president, and Mrs. Robert Kahrs.

Mrs. Herrick introduced her officers and chairmen as follows: Mrs. Kahrs, vice president; Mrs. Ed Ringen, second vice president; Mrs. Dorothy Mitchell, third vice president; Mrs. Byron Oswald, secretary; Mrs. Burke, treasurer; Chairman: Mrs. W. H. Wicker, publicity; Mrs. Gene Merry, hospitality; Mrs. A. L. Brewer, devotionality; Mrs. Dorothy Mitchell, membership; Mrs. Doreen Hood, scrap book; Mrs. Knapp, room mothers; Mrs. R. R. Jiedel, publications; Mrs. E. D. Sutherland, Founder's Day; Mrs. K. H. Eisert, parent education; Mrs. Harold Painter, standard of excellence; Mrs. Harry Mines, historian and Mrs. M. G. Elliott, social.

P. A. Sillers introduced the teachers.

At the close of the meeting a line was formed and the new mothers were greeted and invited to the cafeteria where tea was poured by Mrs. Robert Kahrs and Mrs. Herrick.

Mrs. Gene Merry and Mrs. M. G. Elliott were in charge of the tea.

Large Attendance At FHA Meeting

Future Homemakers Association of Sweet Springs held its first meeting Sept. 10 in the home economics department with the new officers in charge.

Conductor Bemoans US Music Choice

WASHINGTON (AP)—Why is it, the conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra asked today, that Americans would rather listen to "third grade foreign music" than superior works by American composers?

"It's something I just can't figure out," Howard Mitchell said in an interview. "Cole Porter is so much better than Khachaturian."

It's because of this feeling about American music, Mitchell said, that he is not announcing in advance the names of the selections on his orchestral programs this season.

Mitchell put it this way: "In the past, when I announced the programs, people would call up to ask whether the Gershwin or the Creston or the Copland selection would be before or after intermission."

"The implication was clear. They didn't want to hear the American composition and were going to pass up that part of the concert."

These people, Mitchell said, "have the idea that all American music is hard on the ear and filled with dissonance. Actually, though, our music is much easier to listen to than a lot of material they seem to like."

The conductor singled out as examples the music Cole Porter wrote for the Broadway success, "Kiss Me, Kate," and the popular Gayne Suite, with its Saber Dance, by the Russian, Aram Khachaturian.

"Why anyone would rather listen to the Saber Dance over 'So in Love Am I' escapes me completely," Mitchell said.

"Beethoven, Mozart and Bach are some others I can understand, but how many composers are there like them?"

Mitchell remarked that in Europe a conductor builds his concerts around his native music. "A German or an Italian or a Frenchman or a Russian will play 90 per cent native works," he said. "Here, we're lucky if we can get in 10 per cent American music."

Mitchell, 42, has been conductor of the National Symphony nearly five years. He is a cellist whose musical education began in his home town of Lyons, Neb. "In a country where we are so proud of our mechanical and scientific achievements, we actually seem ashamed of our musical accomplishments," he remarked. "It just doesn't seem to make sense."

Of course, the conductor said, there are many concert goers who relish American selections "once they hear them."

"The problem is to get them to listen," he said, and that is why he isn't going to tip his programs beforehand.

Feeder Cattle Sale Has $69 Per Head Av.

Fairly complete figures on the third annual Cooperative Feeder Cattle Sale held at Sedalia Saturday, Sept. 19, show a return of about $5,200 on 754 head sold. This is around $69 per head for an average weight of 500 pounds. The average price last year was about $136 for a 600 pound animal. The average per pound price this year was $13.76 as compared to $22.48 a year ago.

The top price paid was for a pen of 20 white faced calves averaging about 321 pounds. They went to Burl Merriman of Naples, Ill., for $18.75 per hundred weight. He bought another pen of 22 384 pounders for $17.75 and a pen of 12 600 pound steers for $16.00.

Nine producers contributed to the top pen with eight consigned by Don Block of California, four by R. S. Haggard of route 3, Sedalia, two by J. W. Rissler and Son of Route 5 and one each by Vernon Holstein, Stover; Fred Harsch, Smithton; Harold Williams, Hughesville, C. J. Wilkins, Sedalia, Granville Thompson, Sedalia, and H. D. Hankins, Sedalia.

H. A. Cook of Sedalia sold 11 fleshy steers for $18.20 per hundred. They averaged about 825 pounds and went to Bruce Claycomb of Hughesville. Mr. Cook had a total of 52 steers in the sale with Claycomb paying $15 for another pen of 14.

A total of 487 head sold for $13 per hundred or above. Those are the kind of cattle needed to bring buyers from the cattle feeding areas. Possibly next year enough of them will be available so that low quality stock (particularly dairy breeding) will not need to be accepted.

A breakdown on the better quality cattle showed $11 selling above $18, 34 from $17 to $18, 98 from $16 to $17, 87 from $15 to $16, 146 from $14 to $15 and $19, 143 to $14 per hundred.

The largest purchaser was Warren Mescher of New Hope, Ill., who took home 152 head. Three large trailer trucks, in addition to Mr. Mescher's pickup, were needed to make the haul.

The second largest purchase was made by Burl and Oscar Merriman of Naples, Ill., who took 74 home. The 754 head sold to 29 buyers.

Fifty-two consignors sold cattle at the sale with 40 living in Pettis County, nine in Morgan, one in Cooper and two in Montauk.

The victims were Mrs. Myrtle Anderson, 25, and her son, Sylvester. They were found dead of smoke suffocation in their third-floor apartment.

Police said Mrs. Anderson was trapped when she reentered the apartment in search of the boy who died with her.

Gales Spread Damage Trail In Atlantic

LONDON (AP)—Gales up to 81 miles an hour kept the eastern Atlantic boiling today and spread a trail of damage across the British Isles.

Homebound American tourists aboard the liner Ile de France saw a thrill-packed rescue of 24 seamen from the stricken 6,323-ton Liberian freighter Greenville. One man was lost and the body of another was left aboard the sinking ship.

In British waters, a lifeboat plucked seven men to safety from a sinking lightship. And a one-legged yachtsman swam for miles to safety, pushing his artificial leg before him on a mattress.

The Ile de France, bound for New York, reported she had to issue an "abandon ship or we leave you" ultimatum to the skipper of the Liberian freighter 700 miles off the West Coast of England.

Radio messages to the Coast Guard built up this picture of the rescue:

The Greenville lay practically on her side, wallowing out of control in waves 400 feet high.

Her lifeboats were smashed and her superstructure crushed.

Despite angry protests from his crew, the captain at first refused to abandon ship.

Then came the ultimatum from the Ile de France.

Volunteers from the liner's crew manned lifeboats to ferry the Greenville men to safety. One of the latter slipped as he was being hauled aboard and disappeared in the swirling seas.

The liner's doctors rushed the 24 survivors to the Ile's infirmary. Three were injured.

The Greenville, the French ship reported, looked certain to sink within hours. Still lashed to her wheel was the body of an officer killed Sunday in trying to repair the steering gear.

The Council granted the Street and Alley Dept., of which Kelley is chairman, with two added members of the city committee.

Councilmen Carroll and Harry Moore, with Counselor Chester Wolfe the authority to negotiate for a right-of-way for Second Street Terrace to Main for an extension of Limit or Baker Ave.

Councilman Kelley had requested the permission of the council to negotiate for the right-of-way.

Councilman Kelley also requested authority for his department to purchase 100 tons of rock and gravel and 2,000 gallons of asphalt to be used to prepare a mix to be used on repairing the streets. This request was also granted.

A petition was read by Councilman White for Mrs. Emma Hunter, 2401 East 12th, to enter the line of Judge R. L. Weinrich providing he corrected the situation within 15 days.

Thanks for Airport Work

Councilman Carroll asked a vote of thanks to the City Airport Committee, Sedalia Junior Chamber of Commerce and George Handley, manager of the new Sedalia Municipal Airport, for their work in preparing for the dedication ceremonies which were held Sunday. The Council expressed its thanks.

Bob Younger, member of the airport committee, gave a report on the dedication ceremonies and told of a BACA A-1A airplane landing as a gesture of goodwill at the field just as the dedication ceremonies began.

The BACA Airlines is seeking CAA routing of their lines into Sedalia as a "feeder" between Kansas City and St. Louis.

Charles Hofheins, of Sedalia Typewriter Co., asked for a loading zone in front of his store at 300 South Ohio.

Attention to other such loading zones throughout the business section of the city.

Larry Griffith, 512 Sunset Drive, asked that stop signs be installed at Broadway and Fifth on Sunset Drive as well as speed law signs.

Councilman Kelley called attention to the 32nd at the intersection of Broadway and State Fair Blvd., and of a discussion with a representative of the State Highway Department. He requested that a uniform traffic ordinance be adopted to conform with suggestions of the State Highway Dept., and that if such is passed the state department will furnish stop signs on intersections along the two highways, 65 and 50, through Sedalia, as well as speed limit signs.

Would Hike Speed Limit

He suggested the speed limit on Highway 50 be raised to 35 miles per hour from the west city limits to Missouri, or further, and from the east city limits on Highway 50 to Engineer, or possibly Ingard, on the south city limits to 16th and from the north city limits to possibly Johnson or the Missouri Pacific tracks.

Councilman Kelley called attention to the resurfacing of the rough and bag spots on Broadway.

Highway Dept., which recently took over the maintenance of the highway routes through Sedalia. "They have created a great improvement at no cost to the city for which I am grateful," he said.

Councilman Summers asked mayor in the absence of Mayor Herb Studer, who was out of the city, to call the council. He called attention to high weeds at a residence, the second east from

The Rev. Bird Campbell was the speaker Monday night at the Rotary Club meeting at Bothwell Hotel at which time he gave an interesting report on his impressions of Europe while there several months ago. He was introduced by Curtis Schnuppach program chairman for the day.

The business meeting was presided over by the president, George Routsong, who announced that Governor Harry M. Granberg of Kansas City will make his official visit to the club next Monday. He also announced that the club assembly will convene at 10:20 a. m. Monday at Bothwell Hotel.

Junior Rotarians introduced by Charles Hofheins were Jim Eschbacher, Sacred Heart, and Don Morton, Central Business College.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Thomas W. Croxton, and song leader was Dick Snow with Miss Lillian Fox at the piano.

The first rehearsal of the Sedalia Symphony Orchestra for the year 1953-54, which is the 19th season for the organization, was held Monday night with the largest number of musicians ever to attend.

There were 33 Sedalia musicians present with 10 to 15 more, who will play with the orchestra this year, unable to attend.

Abe Rosenthal, director, was exceedingly pleased at the large number at the rehearsal which included many new members and several who had started out dropped out and have now come back into the group to assure Sedalia and surrounding communities outstanding concerts this year.

A good deal of the credit for the large orchestra this year goes to Harry Walsh, chairman of talent, who has contacted many Sedalia musicians to insure a larger and better orchestra for the new season.

In addition, Carl Schrader, president of the board, and three board members, attended the rehearsal Monday night.

Ike Declares No Burden or Tax Is Too Burdensome for America

Must Thwart All Enemies of Freedom Ike Solemnly Says

BOSTON (AP)—President Eisenhower solemnly declared last night that no sacrifice—no tax, for example—is too burdensome for Americans determined to thwart "enemies of freedom equipped with the most terrible weapons of destruction."

Kicking off a Republican drive to hold control of Congress in the 1954 elections, the President got a round of applause in making that statement at a $100-a-table party in the Boston Garden.

His remarks touched off speculation that the White House may be thinking about a new tax levy to help meet the Russian hydrogen bomb threat. There has been unconfirmed speculation the administration might ask Congress to approve a national sales tax.

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin (R-Mass.) told the same rally of New England Republicans that, "it is universally agreed that next January there will be a reduction in personal income taxes and the excess profits tax will be eliminated."

The President made no mention of those scheduled tax cuts.

It was the first time he had anything to say publicly about "terrible weapons of destruction" since Russia announced last month that it had exploded a hydrogen bomb. The U. S. Atomic Energy Commission confirmed it had detected a Russian atomic explosion which included hydrogen reactions.

Eisenhower's speech was carried by nationwide television and radio networks. He spoke to a crowd of about 5,000 persons in the Garden, and dinner committee officials said 4,700 purchased $100 tickets.

The President flew back to Washington last night, completing a one-day round of speaking in Massachusetts which took him to Springfield as well as Boston.

Police estimated a quarter of a million persons turned out to welcome Eisenhower on his arrival in Boston. Other thousands saw him before he left.

In Springfield, the President told a crowd of about 6,000 at the Eastern States Exposition Coliseum that the American form of government is "threatened by a Godless philosophy," communism.

In Boston, Eisenhower took no direct note of criticism of his administration by former President Truman and Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee in 1952. But he listed what he called the accomplishments of his administration thus far.

He said the record since January is "too short to be anything like definitive."

While Eisenhower took no direct issue with the Democrats, some of his GOP colleagues at the rally did.

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, chief of the U. S. mission to the United Nations, referred to Stevenson's contention that the administration is putting things off—is operating a "government by postponement."

Turning to Eisenhower, Lodge said: "Well, Mr. President, you didn't postpone an armistice in Korea. If this is postponement, perhaps we could stand some more of it."

And Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.), chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, hit back at charges by Democrats that the administration has broken its 1952 campaign pledges to the farmers.

"The American farmer will not be fooled by false propaganda," Aiken said.

Eisenhower got a tremendous ovation when he entered Boston Garden two hours in advance of his speech. There was another big ovation when he rose to talk and when he concluded. He was interrupted by applause six times.

He said that in this age of peril "the security of our whole nation—the preservation of our free system—must direct every thought and every decision." Then he declared:

"We know the enemies of freedom to be equipped with the most terrible weapons of destruction. We know, then, that we can meet them with only one answer: there is no sacrifice—no labor, no tax, no service—too hard for us to bear to support a logical and necessary defense of our freedom."

Eisenhower noted the Republican party soon will be celebrating its 100th anniversary. He pictured the party as a "magnificent means" through which "countless thousands of devoted citizens can cooperate in conquering the problems that beset free men everywhere."

That appeared to some to be a reply to Truman, who said in Chicago last week that a wrecking crew was at work in Washington, and that it was up to the Democrats to save America and the world from "the road to ruin."

In reciting the administration's record, the President said that, since taking office Jan. 20, it has:

1. Practiced "true bipartisanship in international affairs."

2. Seen an end to the fighting in Korea.

3. Given the world "the clearest testimony of our firm allegiance to the common cause and needs of free peoples everywhere." He specified shipments of wheat to Pakistan, rehabilitation aid to Korea and food to Berlin.

4. Lifted "stifling artificial controls from our economy."

5. Simplified customs regulations and initiated a review of tariff policy.

6. Used federal authority "to steady farm prices" while "blueprinting extension of social security coverage to more than 10 million unprotected citizens."

7. Redefined policy on public power to assure "maximum of local participation and decision in projects that require the partnership of national, state and local governments."

8. Undertaken "with determination the work of cleaning up governmental operations," and has made "extraordinary progress with this job that so badly needed doing."

9. Reduced government expenditures "by billions of dollars—making a balanced budget somewhat nearer to realization than an accountant's dream."

10. Used federal authority, wherever it clearly extends, "to erase the stain of racial discrimination and segregation."

The President touched only briefly on revision of the Taft-Hartley Labor Law—the issue which caused the resignation of Martin P. Durkin as secretary of labor.

"We are continuing to study and will submit to the next session of Congress, legislative recommendations for making more secure our industrial peace and productivity, more clear and explicit the rights of labor, its unions and its employers," Eisenhower said.

The President took a dig at critics who contend the administration has been taken over by big business.

"The introduction of top business management methods into governmental activity—while it may be painful to some—is proving its worth daily in greater efficiency and lower costs," he said.

Merry-Go-Round
Margaret Truman Never
Says The Wrong Thing

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Margaret Truman, if she ever runs for Congress from Independence, Mo., as reported, may turn out to be a smarter politician than her dad. In addition to a gorgeous sense of humor, she never fails to say the right thing at the right time.

Some time ago, a senator's sister came up to Margaret at a social gathering and dropped one of those dynamite-loaded have-you-stopped-beating-your-wife questions.

"I'm so glad to see you," Margaret replied as if she was too young and innocent to understand the question. "You are looking so well today."

Then out of the corner of her mouth she said to a friend: "Did you hear what she tried to do to me?"

The other day when the Internal Revenue Bureau gave the ex-President a $165,000 favorable tax ruling on his new book, someone brought in a copy of a paper with a headline reading: "Harry makes $165,000 on taxes."

Margaret looked at it and laid it on the coffee table, face up. A friend beside her picked up the paper and turned it face down. But Margaret turned it face up again.

"Why do you do that?" asked the friend.

Replied Margaret:

"There's nothing on the other side about the Trumans, is there?"

Righting a Wrong

By the time this is published, President Eisenhower may already have appointed the successor to Chief Justice Fred Vinson. He has several fine men to pick from, among the finest being Governor Warren of California, probably the broadest-gauged executive in the 48 states and the District of Columbia.

However, in reviewing the candidates, my mind goes back to a period 3 years ago when the politicians crucified a judge.

It was a period somewhat like the last year or so of Harry Truman's administration, when one party—the Republican—was about to fade away and when the opposition party challenged everything it did. As in Truman's day every nominee sent to the Senate for confirmation was scrutinized through a microscope; sometimes through a Kaleidoscope that made the politicians see all kinds of colored prisms at the other end.

Hoover was inept and unpopular; and the chief indoor sport on Capitol Hill was kicking him in the shins. No matter how good the candidate whose name went to the Senate, the Solons saw all sorts of sinister shapes and colors lurking in his background.

It was in this atmosphere that the name of John J. Parker of Charlotte, N. C., U. S. Court of Appeals judge for the 4th Circuit, was sent to the Senate as associate justice of the Supreme Court.

There arose immediately a hue and cry of opposition. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People unearthed a decision by Parker which was interpreted as unfair to Negroes. Labor leaders unearthed a decision which they interpreted as upholding the yellow-dog contract. But more than anything else senators saw a chance to embarrass Hoover. And they fanned the flames of oratory until labor and Negro groups all over the country were writing letters demanding that Parker's appointment be blocked.

Looking back on that period, I have always felt ashamed. I was a young reporter covering the State Department then and had no occasion to write about the Parker battle. But had I been covering the Senate I would probably have thrown as many verbal rocks as the other fellow. It was the popular thing to do.

Probably the crowds that yelled and threw stones on Calvary 2,000 years ago were not much different from the political crowd that threw speeches, editorials and verbal stones at Judge Parker in 1930.

In the end he was defeated.

And like some others who have been pilloried, Judge Parker took his defeat in silence, went back to his court of appeals in Charlotte, N. C., and proceeded to become one of the finest judges in the nation. All sorts of honors have been heaped upon him. The National Association of Colored People, which helped defeat him, has sung his praises. Many labor leaders have done likewise.

But Judge Parker has never achieved the distinction of sitting on the highest court of the land.

I don't know that he still cherishes that ambition. He is a little older now—68—though vigorous and robust. But if President Eisenhower should appoint him, it would, in the opinion of a great many people, right one of the most grievous political wrongs of the last two decades.

Note — Eisenhower will probably have a chance to make two Supreme Court appointments instead of one. Justice Felix Frankfurter, now nearing 71, though in excellent health, may resign in the not too distant future.

Merry-Go-Round

Secret Service agents are scouring the nation for a counterfeiter now passing out near-perfect $20 bills. It appears to be a one-man operation and the crook apparently isn't aiming to make a fortune. He's passing out just enough phony bills to live modestly. His only major "business" expense apparently is for travel. Records show he never stays in one city for more than a week. . . . the Northern Lights may prove to be one of Russia's secret weapons. They throw so much interference into the northern skies that they frequently cripple the entire North American Defense radar network. . . . Supreme Court Justice Bill Douglas bagged an 800-pound Polar bear this summer near the Arctic Circle. . . . The government has 43,000,000 pounds of turkeys in cold storage. That's about 25 percent more than average. . . . the famous fire in General Motors' Livonia plant did $40,000,000 damage. Total insurance came to only $28,000,000. . . . oil is now producing more energy in the U.S.A. than coal. In 1900 coal supplied 90 per cent of the nation's energy. Last year it supplied 34 per cent.

Oldest Pension

England's oldest pension dates back to 936 A.D., when King Ethelred founded an annual grant to the parish priest of Purhoe, a small village near Exeter, for bravery against Danish invaders. The payment has been made to the vicar of the parish ever since that time.

Low Service Morale Laid
To Wives of Servicemen

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—A colonel in the Pentagon developed an interesting theme on the present alarming state of low morale in the armed services. He puts about 90 per cent of the blame on the wives of the men in service.

It's obvious why a colonel, brave enough to say such a thing, must be kept anonymous. But there's no anonymity connected with claims that morale is low.

In his first meeting with the press, Admiral Arthur Radford, new chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, appeared more concerned about low service morale than he did about the Russian hydrogen bomb. There are at least a half-dozen high-level reports being prepared on the subject for presentation to Congress.

Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson has a study under way following a memorandum written by former JCS Chairman Gen. Omar Bradley. Bradley wrote that he was worried about "the growing lack of confidence in the military service as a worthwhile and respected career."

As far as the anonymous colonel goes, Wilson and the other morale experts can stop probing the problem right now. He claims that behind almost every case of low morale, you can find a female. Following is a paraphrasing of the colonel's ideas:

First, doff your hat to service wives and widows who have suffered plenty. Congratulate the handful who cheerfully move from post to post without complaining and who never say one word which dulls their husbands' sense of duty in performing one of history's most important jobs, that of defending freedom in the world.

But then you come to the majority of service wives and the sweethearts of servicemen. They are the ones who gripe.

It's the most-married military organization in history with approximately 85 per cent of the officers and 35 per cent of the enlisted men with wives.

Take the loudest beef of all about military service, which is low pay. You don't hear the bachelors complain. The wives are the ones who needle their husbands about more money, always pointing out how much more can be made in private industry. They forget such things as free medical attention and low commissary food prices.

The average man in service is not distressed to be sent overseas or to some out-of-the-way base. It's his wife who prods him into trying to get some soft, state-side assignment. Then, when he does, she fusses about the trouble of moving, even though the services take care of practically every detail of it for her. American women just seem afraid to leave the warm security of their familiar, warm, beauty parlor hair drier.

Again there are a few who enjoy this chance of seeing different parts of the country, knowing that wherever they go they will probably meet old friends and make many new ones.

Some wives are happy as long as their husbands are attending some service school or stationed at some base where life is easy and pleasant. But they can't seem to understand that all of this preparation must lead to a tour of duty overseas or with troops, where life might not be so cozy or where they can't follow their husbands.

The services spend hundreds of millions of dollars on troop information programs which try to explain the basic international strife between Communism and Democracy, which is why so many Americans have to be in uniform, many unwillingly. American women need these courses more than the men.

The average U. S. female tends to be a pacifist. She resents being even a small part of a military organization. She doesn't realize the tremendously important job her husband is doing in uniform even if it happens to be that of club officer. She wants life in her new ramblar unthreatened by transfers or overseas assignments, unmindful that the country itself is threatened as it never has been before in history.

She has also forgotten that military service, even without the imminent threat of war, is an ancient and honorable profession which has attracted red-blooded males since the dawn of history.

And again everyone knows that wives and sweethearts of men in uniform can be brave and do suffer and should get sympathy. But so do wives of miners, bricklayers, milkmen and engineers suffer.

Please remember, these are the colonel's ideas.

Boils, Rosea, Liver Spots, Itching and Explanations

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

All of the questions in today's column are devoted to the skin.

Q—My husband comes in contact with a great deal of grease and oil in the course of his work and is constantly troubled with boils or what look like boils. Is there any connection?—J. L.

A—It is quite possible that a connection exists because difficulties of this sort with the skin are a common occupational hazard among workers who come in contact with greases, oils, and the like.

Q—Would you please discuss pityriasis rosea, which I have had for four weeks. Is this a deficiency disease? —H. H.

A—This is not a deficiency disease, but is a mild inflammation of the skin, characterized by rose-colored patches, principally on the trunk of the body. It produces few if any other symptoms, usually requires no special treatment, and clears up by itself without complications in a period of several weeks.

Q—I am 72 years young and feel fine, but lately I have been getting brown spots on my face and hands. Are these liver spots? —T. N.

A—There is no such condition as liver spots. The brown spots on your skin are probably merely increased deposits of pigment without any serious significance. Changes of this sort are not uncommon among elderly people.

Q—I am one of those afflicted with itching all over my body after taking a bath, which usually lasts about half an hour. Is there anything you can suggest? —W. J.

A—This is unfortunately a rather common complaint. Some people get a measure of relief by switching from soap to a soap substitute cleansing agent. In many victims of this condition the skin seems to be rather dry, and if this is the case, restricting the number of baths and using oily preparations such as is used for dry skin generally may be of some help. In those in whom simple measures are not helpful the skin specialists often have some additional tricks up their sleeves.

'You Can't Afford Not to Be Able to Afford It'

The World Today—
Ike Faces Most Serious Year

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Eisenhower has returned from vacation to face one of the most serious years of his life. Budget, deficit, taxes, prosperity, defense, trade, Korea, dealing with the Russians. All are on his doorstep, waiting.

For 1953 was a period of getting ready for 1954, and later. In his Boston speech last night the President said frankly the record of his administration has been too short to be "anything like definitive."

He cut government expenses in 1953. He says he wants to cut them more in 1954. The biggest expense, and therefore the juiciest target for cutting, is in national defense. But in 1953 the Russians claimed to have produced the hydrogen bomb.

Eisenhower must decide whether national safety can stand any further cuts in defense. A country which talks tough, as this one has been, while reducing money on armaments, will hardly impress the Russians or assure American Allies.

In 1954, through taxes which will be reduced automatically, the US government faces a loss of billions of dollars. Heavy cuts in expenses will be necessary to overcome that loss unless, perhaps, the administration can find a new kind of tax, maybe a sales tax, to make up the lost revenue.

But 1954 is an election year—for all 435 House seats and one third of the Senate — and any administration request for a new tax might be enough to split the Republican party, some of whose members were bitter in 1953 when Eisenhower asked extension of the excess profits tax.

A bad business recession in 1954 would knock the administration's plans for reduced savings out the window. Eisenhower would have to think of remedies fast, even though they meant spending a lot of government money to start the prosperity wheels again.

A bad recession here would affect more than American spending. American Allies would feel it. Russia would have a chance to make more capital, through dissatisfaction of the people in the Allied countries, than at any time since World War II.

Meanwhile Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles will have to make decisions on dealing with the Communists in the Korean Peace Conference, providing the Communists even let the conference begin. No one here talks optimistically about such a conference solving the Korean case.

A conference statement would mean this country must keep troops in Korea indefinitely, and on the alert against a new attack. At the same time Eisenhower will have his hands full seeing that South Korean President Syngman Rhee doesn't upset the apple-cart by renewing the war himself.

Renewed war there might spread much further than Korea.

Since the Russians have made faster progress in hydrogen bomb development than was predicted here, Eisenhower has a choice: Stand firm against the Communists until they show by deeds they want peace, or try to work out a disarmament agreement with them.

If Eisenhower took the latter course it would mean a shift from the policy statement he laid down last April and which Dulles repeated at the United Nations last week.

In addition, since the administration evidently is planning to cut out, or drastically reduce, foreign aid, it must make decisions on helping the Europeans with freer trade policies, or letting them do the best they can with the present policy. Trade is tied in tightly with their prosperity and, so, their defense ability.

THE lights in Greer's office seemed to have dissolved Ortega's tan and made his face look chalky.

"She never came," he said. "Last night when I took her home, she told me to meet her at 1:30 this afternoon in the garden. We were going to go down to the harbor and rent a boat. She's crazy about boats, always wanted to walk along the wharf or out to the end of the breakwater."

The words struck a chord in Greer's mind, and it took him only a moment to put the chord in its place. Rose French had walked along the breakwater several days before her death, according to Mrs. Cushman's report.

"We're going to be married when—when she comes back," Ortega said.

"You're just a boy, aren't you?"

"I'm 19," Ortega said stubbornly. "Ada is—she's a little bit older."

Ada, Greer knew, was a lot older. Aloud he said, "Look, young fellow, I'm no specialist in these affairs but I know Ada Murphy. She's no ordinary servant. She's pretty sharp, she's been to college and probably quite a few other places where they don't give degrees. You're fighting out of your class."

"I've been hearing talk like that all my life. It never changed my mind."

"Has it occurred to you that Murphy couldn't face giving you the brushoff in person, so she just lit out to avoid trouble?"

"Ada would never do that."

"She might have got fed up suddenly with her job or you or life in general and decided to take a bus down to L. A."

"She didn't take a bus," Ortega said with quiet intensity. "All her clothes are still in her room."

Murphy's room was furnished, not with leftovers from other rooms like many domestics' quarters, but with matched mahogany furniture and chintz drapes that duplicated the design on the bedspread, and a small cherry-red loveseat.

On the loveseat, looking very pale against the brilliant red, sat Ethel. Peeled down to her essentials, Ethel presented a different picture to Greer. She wasn't feeble-minded, as he'd thought at first.

HE indicated the bulging closet with a jab of his thumb. "I don't see how you can be sure nothing is missing, with that mess."

"Because Willett's mother saw her leave. She'd gotten up to go to the bathroom and happened to glance out the window. Murphy was just going down the front walk. She had no suitcase or anything, not even a coat."

"What was she wearing?"

"One of her ordinary cotton dresses, a turquoise-colored chambray."

"Had there been any disagreement between Murphy and her mother?"

"No, not really. Murphy had mentioned something to me about having a garbage disposal unit installed, and I told her I didn't think Willett would agree to it since it isn't our house, after all. She certainly wasn't angry, if that's what you mean. Ortega says she has a temper, but I've never seen any evidence of it. Even when Willett's mother spoke roughly to her, she just smiled in that superior way of hers, as if nothing that anybody else said or did made the slightest impression on her."

Which was Murphy, the crisp and controlled young woman in the immaculate black and white uniform, or the undisciplined child who tossed her belongings helter-skelter into a closet and closed the door?

"Did you go to her hotel, or wherever she was staying, to interview her?"

"No, she came here. She'd given a phone number in the ad. I called her and she wasn't in. But she called back and I was—well, impressed by her voice, and her references."

not only that he has a new pond a nice shiny washtub. Now don't laugh at Hank—it might not sound like such a big pond to you—but Hank thinks it is wonderful. He just swims around and around in his own private pond and every now and then he ducks down in it, clear down, and comes up shaking his little yellow self. Now we know why ducks were named ducks—because they duck.—H. L.

The grandparents of a year and a half old boy have a restaurant and one evening recently his mother and daddy took him there. There was quite a crowd at the time and his mother got busy to help out for a little while. The baby, who is accustomed to getting something when he goes to the restaurant, didn't seem to be getting much attention — everybody was just too busy to listen to what he wanted. Feeling the service he was getting in that restaurant was pretty slow, he decided he would wait on himself — and he did.

He pulled on the door to the case where the pies were, took out a nice cherry pie — and didn't cut himself a piece. He just tried eating it as it was. By the time someone noticed him he was still eating the pie and was simply covered all over with cherries and cherry juice. Of course it was a little messy, but he really enjoyed that pie.—H. L.

troops in Korea indefinitely, and on the alert against a new attack. At the same time Eisenhower will have his hands full seeing that South Korean President Syngman Rhee doesn't upset the apple-cart by renewing the war himself.

Renewed war there might spread much further than Korea.

Since the Russians have made faster progress in hydrogen bomb development than was predicted here, Eisenhower has a choice: Stand firm against the Communists until they show by deeds they want peace, or try to work out a disarmament agreement with them.

If Eisenhower took the latter course it would mean a shift from the policy statement he laid down last April and which Dulles repeated at the United Nations last week.

In addition, since the administration evidently is planning to cut out, or drastically reduce, foreign aid, it must make decisions on helping the Europeans with freer trade policies, or letting them do the best they can with the present policy. Trade is tied in tightly with their prosperity and, so, their defense ability.

"My own feeling is that Murphy will turn up some time tonight, wondering what all the fuss is about."

"That's what Willett thinks too. I don't think," she added slowly, "you'd better check Mr. Dalloway."

"Why?"

"Whenever he's around things seem to happen. Dalloway comes to town and his first wife is murdered. Dalloway comes creeping around our yard and my maid disappears." Ethel's voice was rising like a siren. "Maybe she's dead too. Maybe while you're standing there thinking what a charming fellow Dalloway is, he's out somewhere slitting her throat!"

"Mrs. Goodfield, I don't believe Murphy's having her throat slit, certainly not by Dalloway. I happen to know where Dalloway is."

ETHEL glared at him, mute and obstinate, as if nothing in the world would convince her that Dalloway was not in some dark alley or grove of trees finishing Murphy off.

"He's over at Frank Clyde's house," Greer continued.

"Does every Tom, Dick and Harry in town keep you informed where he's going and why and when?"

"Dalloway didn't have to tell me. I already knew. He hired Clyde to go to San Francisco and check up on the Goodfield family."

"Why, that old goat."

"I told you just so you'd know that Dalloway is as suspicious of you as you are of him."

Greer thought it was a good time to change the subject. "Tell me, how did you happen to hire Ada Murphy?"

"Through her want ad in the local paper."

"Did you go to her hotel, or wherever she was staying, to interview her?"

"No, she came here. She'd given a phone number in the ad. I called her and she wasn't in. But she called back and I was—well, impressed by her voice, and her references."

Research Goes On to Harness All Elements

KYOTO, JAPAN (U)—Atomic scientists are the glamor boys today with their awesome progress on H-bomb destruction and the unfolding potential of almost unlimited power for peaceful work.

But there is glitter too in the field of extra-nuclear physicists—scientists who explore outside the hearts of atoms in the mysterious spaces where electrons zoom in crazy patterns at fantastic speeds.

And their research promises to harness the elements even closer to man's needs in the world of tomorrow.

In fact, some of the 54 scientists from 14 nations meeting in this ancient capital of Japan with their Japanese hosts say that in the long run extra-nuclear physics may be more valuable to mankind than atomic energy.

Ever hear of custom-made chemistry? Non-stop electricity?

A group of the scientists informally discussed their specialties outside the closed meeting.

"Looking into the future, we may someday be able to put all of chemistry on a prescription basis," said Prof. C. A. Coulson of the University of Oxford, England.

"We could decide just what we want the chemical to do—its effect on industry would be incalculable."

As a mathematician, Coulson made long and complicated chemical calculations predicting the qualities of a half dozen hitherto unsuspected anesthetics. They were made and performed exactly as predicted.

Prof. John Bardeen of the University of Illinois discovered something we call super-conductivity—or electricity without friction.

"When we get temperatures down as low as we can get them, close to absolute at 273 degrees below zero centigrade, we can start an electrical current flowing in a ring of wire."

"Then we take the original electrical impulse away—and the current keeps going around and around."

"If we could keep our power lines chilled close to absolute zero, what an advantage that would be! It is like starting water flowing with a pump, stopping the pump and having the water keep right on flowing."

Beats Desert Death, Dies In Accident On Village Street

AMESBURY, England (U)—Enid Gurney cheated death in a scorching desert last year. Death yesterday claimed her in the quiet of an English village.

Mrs. Gurney and her baby son Richard were passengers in a British airliner that crashed in May, 1952, in the Sahara. For eight days they were stranded, huddling under the wrecked plane's wings for shade. Arabs finally guided them to safety.

Yesterday Mrs. Gurney, 24, took Richard, now 2, for a walk through the village near their home here. A pair of wheels flew off a passing truck and killed her instantly. The child was unhurt.

Someone Stole Cannon Balls From Monument

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (U)—Fayetteville police got a new order today: Look for a dozen stolen Confederate cannon balls.

The big black metal spheres—each about the size of a bowling ball—were taken from the foot of a Confederate monument near mid-town. Originally they were centered together in the form of a pyramid. But recently the monument was moved, and when the balls were re-located, no cement was used. They disappeared over a period of several months by singles and pairs.

S-C Tigers Want 4,000 Grid Fans

When Joplin Plays Here Friday Night: Jennie Jaynes Lewis Memorial Stadium

Wanted — 4,000 football fans for Smith-Cotton's first home game of the 1953 season Friday night, Sept. 26, on the new gridiron of the Jennie Jaynes Lewis Memorial Stadium, west of Liberty Park. There is plenty of seating capacity; a beautiful setting and all new lighting system to give a daylight appearance to the game.

The Tigers came out of the Kemper Military Academy game, not only with a 19-6 victory, but with few bruises and no serious injuries to any player. Actually it was one of the cleanest games played between these two teams in years. It was a good game as far as both teams were concerned in spite of the three to one touchdown score.

Friday night the Tigers go up against something new. It has been many, many years since Sedalia has met a team from Joplin. It was over ten years ago that a Sedalia Golden Glove boxing team met a Joplin squad and it was rough. So the Tigers football squad can take a hint. The gl-skin boys from down in Jasper County are pretty big and tough, but if they are anything like their Golden Glove brothers, they are real sportsmen.

It will not be the dedication game this week. That has been postponed until later in the season and until the stadium is completed. But Friday night will be just a big affair. The Spiz Club has been out drilling and preparing to put on its show. The band is all set to do some music for the customers and entertain both before the game and at halftime.

This week is a rough one on the team as far as practice is concerned. Coach Ralph "Stub" Dow and his assistants have been drilling plays into the boys, working over their blocking and giving the passing department a hard time. Coach Dow refuses to say what his team might or might not do in their first meeting with Joplin, but he does say all the boys have been working hard and still maintain that long awaited cooperation among themselves and with the coaching department.

Dow did remark: "I don't believe you could break this team's spirit with anything. They've got something as far as spirit is concerned, even if we don't have the weight or 'big boys.' They've got what any coach likes to see in a team."

Surprisingly the dropoff of players this year has been very slight. The season practice opened with 54 boys working out regularly and of that number Coach Dow could account for 48 boys Monday. Thus the loss has been but six.

This afternoon the team got its first "feel" of the new gridiron when Coach Dow took the squad out for a practice.

Harvey Haddix Wins 19th Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Left-hander Harvey Haddix has time for just about one more try at his goal of 20 victories for the St. Louis Cardinals this year.

If he pitches like he did at Busch Stadium last night, he will make it.

He hurled triumph No. 19 then, a four-hit, 4-0 affair with the Chicago Cubs the victims. Eight of the Bruins struck out and only Hank Sauer could do much with Harv's offerings. He doubled in the second and later singled.

Haddix, with a 2-0 lead to go on and a safety factor with a seventh inning tie, scoring Steve Biko. A long fly by Solly Hemus brought Haddix home.

Cub rookie Jim Willis, who won his two previous starts, was troubled by wildness in his seven innings on the mound. He yielded only five hits, but walked seven.

Enos Slaughter drove in the first two St. Louis runs with a single in the first frame and an infield out in the sixth.

The Browns had an open date.

Ted Williams Story--

Even Ted Can't Figure His Greatest Hitting Campaign

By JOE REICHLER

BOSTON (AP) — Are you still trying to figure out why Ted Williams, after nearly two full seasons out of baseball, is hitting better than ever and hammering home runs at a faster pace than Babe Ruth ever did?

Well, you might as well stop wracking your brains. Even Williams can't fully explain it.

"I've tried to figure out what's happening to me," he said. "I'd like to find out because I'd like to hit that way the rest of my life."

"I've done a lot of analyzing of this streak," he added, "and I don't know the answer completely. But I've got an idea, though."

"It may be I'm hitting so well because the pitchers are tired and

Wilkinson May Have Trouble Opening Day

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Oklahoma's Bud Wilkinson, a staunch supporter of the new "one-plateau" football since the rule was passed last winter, is finding that he — and other coaches — may have overlooked a few things.

Wilkinson still is in favor of the two-way game and he isn't having too much trouble himself making the change-over with a comparatively green squad that has to play top-rated Notre Dame next Saturday in its opening game of the season.

But after reviewing the results of last Saturday's games and his scouting reports from them, Bud has found something new has been added.

"The game is not as technically efficient this year, but I don't think anybody will notice it," Wilkinson said today. "It will give the school with a limited squad a chance to win. (Mississippi Southern wouldn't beat Alabama with platoons.)"

"But I think we overlooked a couple of things, for instance that in plateau football there weren't any scrubs. The boy that was a scrub on offense usually played on defense. This could bring a serious morale problem. Now the kids below the third team have no chance of getting into the game and it will be hard to keep up their morale and enthusiasm for practice."

Wilkinson figures the revival of B teams, playing regular schedules, will solve that one. But there's the little matter of the inability of many T-formation centers to get the ball back to a kicker, plus the possibility that one bad pass from center will break apart an otherwise good football game.

"We all want to punt from a spread formation, but the center can't get the ball back," Bud explained. "It takes a lot of skill to throw the ball back 13 or 14 yards and block somebody while you do it. My scouts saw more than a dozen teams last weekend and they all used a tight punt formation. We'll just have to tighten up and let them run the ball back."

Oklahoma never went the way on two-plateau football because Wilkinson never had enough of what he calls "good football players" to split them up.

But his backs and ends have either had only one-way experience or have switched positions this year and he figures they'll make costly mistakes in the first few games.

That's why the usually-smiling coach is crying the blues this week. "The only way we could possibly win would be for Notre Dame to beat themselves—say have three or four passes intercepted. And Notre Dame doesn't do that," he says.

Other Big Seven coaches today took stock of injuries suffered in their opening games Saturday.

Bill Meek said both Kansas State's first string ends are on the injury list. Left end Ed Pence suffered a smashed nose and may be out of action two weeks. The right end, Ed Linta, suffered an ankle injury.

Frank Lindrich, Kansas' second string halfback, suffered an injured knee that may keep him from playing in the UCLA game this weekend.

At the University of Missouri, Coach Don Faurot sought a replacement for Guy Rose, a second string halfback. Rose suffered a broken leg in the Maryland game.

I'm physically fresher than I would be if I had played all season. Nobody can tell me that ball players today can stand up under the strain of playing a full season as they did in the old days.

"That's not because the old timers were more durable. It's simply because it is harder than ever to play ball today. It's physically impossible to play at top speed from beginning to end under this murderous schedule of night games, two-night doubleheaders followed by afternoon games."

"There's another explanation — probably two or three, way I'm hitting. First, I've always been a hot weather hitter. In my last year before I left for the Marines (1951), I went through April and May hitting .220. Look up my July and August record. I must have been around .400 because I was hitting .340 going into September. Then the weather got cold again and I finished with .320."

This is the first time since he fractured his left elbow in the 1950 all-star game that it has not bothered him a great deal.

"The arm doesn't hurt," he said, "yet I know I'm not getting enough of my left hand into the swing. It's not as strong as it should be but it doesn't hurt any more—except in real cold weather."

"Maybe Ted is right when he says he doesn't have his full strength back," said Red Sox manager Lou Boudreau. "But you certainly can't tell it from those 400 foot homers he's hit recently."

Bums' Backers Believe Brooks Can Blast Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — If you're one of those who think the Brooklyn Dodgers' chances of finally whipping the New York Yankees in a World Series are good, you've got plenty of backing.

Dodger supporters base their belief that Brooklyn's powerhouse righthanders will "molder" the Yankee lefthanders just as they've been slaying National League southpaws all year.

Already they are beginning to feel sorry for Eddie Lopat and Whitey Ford, the Yankees' southpaw aces.

But have the Dodgers been death to southpaws as is generally believed? Not so you could notice it.

A check reveals that rival manager Casey Stengel started 23 lefthanders against the predominantly right-handed hitting Brooks this season. Only six have gone all the way. So far so good. But in the 27 decisions involving lefthanders the Dodgers show a won-lost record of 16-11. That's only a .593 pace. And that's what you pay off on.

Compare that with Brooklyn's overall .680 percentage, and one wonders just how much southpaw slaying the Dodgers have done this year. Actually, the Dodgers have fared better against righthanders, against whom they've won 86 while losing 37 for a .699 percentage.

Harvey Haddix, St. Louis Cardinals' rookie southpaw, owns three victories over Brooklyn. That's as many as any pitcher in the league, lefthanded or righthander, holds over the Dodgers. Curt Simmons, Philadelphia's talented lefthander, has a 2-2 record against Brooklyn. He and Haddix are the only southpaws with two complete games against the National League pennant winners.

The only other lefthander with two triumphs over Brooklyn is Milwaukee's Don Liddle. The Braves' rookie picked up both wins in relief.

Lefthanders with one victory over Brooklyn include Chicago's Paul Minner, Cincinnati's Fred Baczewski and Harry Perkowski and Milwaukee's Johnny Antonelli.

Short Season With Smaller Bag of Quail

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Quail hunters, brace yourselves for a shorter season and a smaller bag limit this year.

It's a gloomy forecast the experts offered the state Conservation Commission, a dark outlook on which the commission is expected to set the 1953 quail season at its Clinton, Mo., meeting Thursday.

Two years of drought in Missouri have cut the margin off the state's quail population. And without that safety edge it will take two or three years at least to bring the bobwhite's numbers back to the comfortable level of, say, 1950.

Jack A. Stanford, the commission's quail expert, engineered a statewide census and a study of the prospects in these past two months as the drought extended its searing fingers across the state.

The survey showed:

1. Population down as much as 59 to 75 per cent in the southern half of the state despite the prodigious efforts of the quail to nest and re-nest this past summer.

2. An almost normal production in northeastern Missouri where rainfall was at least more nearly average and the cover and forage is more to the birds' liking.

3. A fair production in northwestern Missouri. But that heavily-farmed area has been declining for years as quail country. Even a good nesting season in northwestern Missouri is not going to make quail hunting there as good as in other parts of the state, Sanford says.

So the experts told the commission the season should be shortened and the daily bag and possession limit probably should be cut to five birds.

The hunters even considered requests that the season be eliminated altogether this year. But they think that is unnecessary. They say 80 per cent of the quail die each year, under normal circumstances, and the hunters might as well help themselves to that 80 per cent of the crop.

That would leave a brood stock to carry on, small enough to get along with this winter's light forage but big enough so bobwhite can start beating his way back as prince of Missouri's upland birds.

The experts believe it will take at least two, and possibly three, good years to bring the quail back to normal numbers.

Last year, despite a serious drought, the season was kept its usual length—from Nov. 10 through

LaStarza Says He Knows How to Get Up From Rocky's Punch

GREENWOOD LAKE, N. Y. (AP) — "I know how to get up." That is Roland LaStarza's answer to Rocky Marciano's tremendous knockout punch.

Not that the 26-year-old challenger from New York's Bronx is counting on hitting the deck Thursday night when he fights the Rock for the world heavyweight championship at the Polo Grounds, but he is ready—just in case.

Gene Gossney knocked me down twice," he said. "Marciano did once and so did Walter Hafer. I got up and knocked out all of them except Marciano."

"Do I think about the first fight and the punch that hit me?" he said. "All I think about is how I got up and beat him (actually he lost a disputed split decision to the Rock, March 24, 1950). I don't think about getting hit. I think about how much I've improved."

Roland has his own ideas about the kind of fight to expect from the champion.

"I expect him to hold back," he said. "He'll try to make me lead and try to get in his right hand. If he can't do it, then he'll come in. When he comes in, I'll be ready."

Rocky Boxes Final Three Rounds Before Battle With LaStarza

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (AP)—Heavy weight Champion Rocky Marciano was scheduled to climb into the ring at his Catskill Mountain retreat today and box his final three rounds before taking on Roland LaStarza on Thursday in the Polo Grounds.

The mild-mannered champion still declined to make any prediction as to the outcome of the title scrap.

He says he's just going to do his best, despite the pleadings of his manager, Al Weill.

The former matchmaker for the sponsoring International Boxing Club, Weill has been needing his charge to make it short.

"I'm not as young as I used to be," Weill told Marciano. "Climbing up and down those ring steps won't do my heart any good. Get it over for me fast, boy."

This year, if the commission follows the biologists' recommendations, the season probably will be shortened and the limits will be cut to five or six.

Stanford said he was convinced the quail hunters have become conditioned to the need for a shorter season and lower bag limit. He said the commission feels it is "pretty lucky" to have the wholehearted cooperation of the hunters.

He said the hunters' attitude was shown clearly by the number of suggestions received that the season be eliminated this year to protect the birds as much as possible.

Dec. 31. The daily and possession limits, however, were cut from 10 birds to eight.

All the Rock would answer was: "Okay, Al, you can count on me to do my best."

Weill and trainer Charlie Goldman did not see eye to eye on today's workout. Goldman, who has brought Marciano along the entire trail, wanted the champion to rest, fearing injury. Weill, however, said the Rock must go through his usual three rough rounds.

Yesterday's Games-- Both Leagues Can See Teams Still Shifting

By BEN PHLEGAR
AP Sports Writer

With just six days to play, the standings of the National and American Leagues could still undergo considerable change before being entered in the final record books.

Five places in each League remain undecided. So far the only teams guaranteed of finishing on Sunday night where they are today are pennant-winning Brooklyn, runner-up Milwaukee and last place Pittsburgh in the National League and the champion New York Yankees, fourth place Boston and fifth place Washington in the American.

Cleveland gets a chance tonight and tomorrow to nail down second place in the American League. The Indians invade Chicago for two games with the White Sox who trail them by two. A sweep would give Manager Al Lopez his third straight runner-up finish with the Indians.

An all-victorious climax to the 1953 season would give the Indians their third identical year—93 victories and 61 losses. They have five games left and a current mark of 88-61.

Near the bottom of the American League Detroit needs to win three of four remaining games to assure sixth place. At the moment the Tigers lead Philadelphia by a game and a half. The A's have five games left. If they can capture even one of the five they'll avoid any share of last place.

The Browns appear almost certain to wind up their days in St. Louis at the bottom of the heap but by winning their last four they might tie the Athletics.

Third place in the National League is still up for grabs between St. Louis and Philadelphia. The Cards whipped the Chicago Cubs 4-0 last night in the only action in either league and moved a game and a half ahead of the Phillies. St. Louis has six games to play, Philadelphia five.

The New York Giants, in fifth place, might get caught by Cincinnati. The Redlegs also could sink to seventh if they dropped their three game series with the Cubs which opens tonight. The Cubs are now in seventh.

Harvey Haddix, pitching his first full season in the big leagues, won his 19th game for the Cardinals and his sixth shutout. He aided his own cause with a triple, one of only five hits collected by the Cardinals.

Haddix allowed the Cubs three singles plus a double by Hank Sauer.

Rain yesterday washed out the Yankees' final appearance in Boston.

Sports Roundup--

Mississippi Southern Admits It's Independent Powerhouse

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—So you never heard of Mississippi Southern College, whose football team whopped Alabama, 25 to 19, on the Crimson

Coach Bails Him Out In Time to Win Game

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP)—Lewis Green's coach got him out of jail just in time.

The 17-year-old Wheelersburg High School halfback had served 21 hours of a 15-day speeding sentence when he was let out in custody of his coach yesterday. He wasted little time getting into his uniform and leading his team to a 7-0 victory over Portsmouth Notre Dame.

Tide's own field Friday night. All we can say is, it's your loss, bub.

Mississippi Southern only happens, by its own admission, to be the independent football king of the entire South. It would have been sorely disappointed if its boys hadn't cut down Alabama, which was rated fifth among the nation's powerhouses in a recent Associated Press pre-season poll.

In the words of its free-wheeling publicity director, Jimmie McDowell, "Mississippi Southern is the McCoy, podners." Its athletic staff is composed of "all southern gentlemen of the old school." Its 100-piece marching band is "the best band what am—the pride of the South."

It isn't however, until he gets on the subject of halfback Hugh Pepper and fullback Bucky McElroy, who between them scored three times against 'Bama, that the Hattiesburg Homer really lets himself go.

"Never, never, never," declares McDowell on a rising note, "there never was a one-two punch like McElroy and Pepper—the most genuinely magnificent pair of ground gaining backs you are likely to see for the rest of your life!"

Why people should be surprised by the southerners vault into national prominence is more than anyone in Hattiesburg can understand. Last year their football team won 10 of 11, losing only to Alabama. Their baseball club won 10 of 11, also, and their basketballers 27 out of 35, reaching the quarter-final of the NAIA championships.

What it comes to is that Coach Thad Vann was sitting on a whale of a football team, and knew it. So did everybody else in southern Mississippi. Only the so-called national experts were in the dark about it. It is extremely likely now that the southerners will go through undefeated, as their only remaining major opponent is Georgia Nov. 21.

Possibly they have opened a trend which will become clearly apparent as the football season advances—that a team with comparatively limited resources can play the big fellows on even terms since abolishment of the two-plateau system. That is, so long as the little guys can field one eleven which is really good.

Though its student body numbers only 2,000-odd, Mississippi

Southern obviously can do that. A great majority of its players come right from Mississippi, a scattered few from adjoining states.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT—Sedalia, Mo., Tues., Sept. 22, 1953 11

Port Plans For Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico, which claims a longer coast line than the United States, is determined to make more use of its maritime resources. For hundreds of years the economic and social life of the country has centered in the mountains of the interior. Probably yellow fever was the chief reason. Until 40 years ago it was a constant danger along the coast in the summer. But since the disease has been eliminated from the port cities, there is no reason not to make greater use of them. A cabinet committee drafted plans for what the government calls "The March to the Sea." It calls for increased numbers of fishing boats to provide cheap seafood for the interior; a merchant fleet to carry coastwise freight and relieve the overburdened railroads; better dock facilities; agricultural colonies to use the well watered lands along the coast; and better roads to coastal areas from the interior.

Boost your car's power as much as 15% with New Conoco Super Gasoline with TCP

The Greatest Gasoline Development in 31 Years

Restores "new car" power!

Increases spark-plug life up to 150%!*

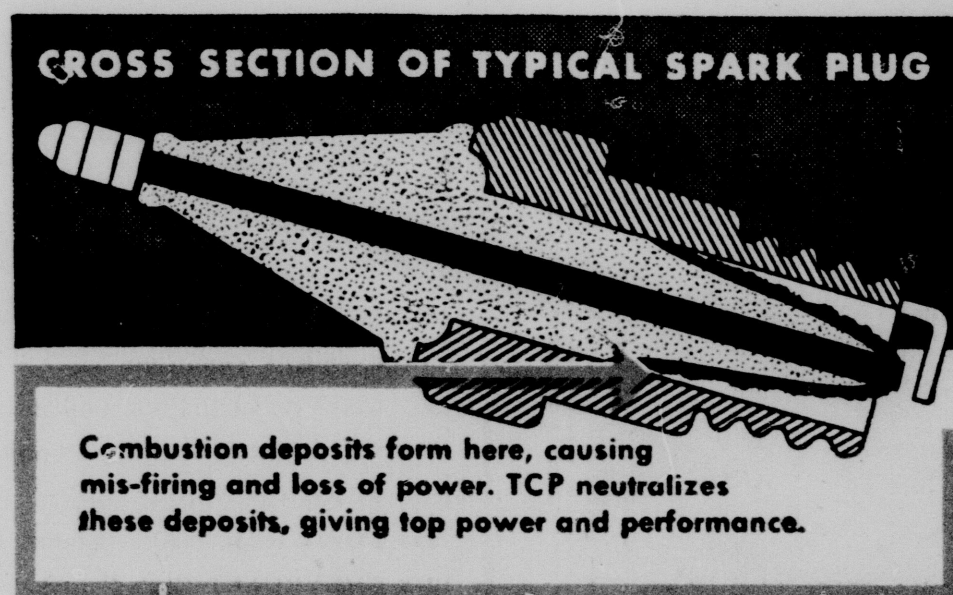

Gives you extra gas mileage, too!

Today it is possible to put new power in your car—just by driving into a Conoco station and filling up with new Conoco Super Gasoline.

For Conoco Super with TCP is a new kind of motor fuel—truly the greatest advance in gasoline since the introduction of tetraethyl lead in 1922. New Conoco Super can actually increase the power of the average car as much as 15%. That's because TCP overcomes the greatest cause of power loss affecting most cars on the road today. Conoco Super with TCP is brought to you by special arrangement with Shell Oil Company. TCP is Shell's trademark for the remarkable additive originally developed for aviation fuel.

Combustion deposits drastically reduce power

When you drive your car, deposits constantly build up on spark plugs and in the combustion chambers. These deposits can "cheat" you of power in two ways. First, they short-circuit spark plugs—causing them to mis-fire. Second, deposits in the combustion chambers cause fuel to ignite before it should. This is called pre-ignition or "wild ping." The combined effect of mis-firing and pre-ignition is loss of power, lack of "pep" and wasted gas.

Combustion deposits form here, causing mis-firing and loss of power. TCP neutralizes these deposits, giving top power and performance.

How Conoco Super Gasoline with TCP works

Now Conoco Super with TCP—a cresyl compound—dramatically overcomes loss of power and fuel caused by combustion deposits. TCP actually neutralizes harmful deposits on spark plugs and in combustion chambers. With new Conoco Super your plugs spark as they should. Your fuel ignites as it should. You get and keep "new car" performance.

TCP helps your car—whether new or old

Whether your car is new or old, you can enjoy the benefits of TCP. If you have a new car, with a high-compression engine, it will keep on delivering its built-in power as long as you use Conoco Super Gasoline. If your car is an older one,

Conoco Super will restore much of the power you have lost. Conoco Super with TCP is at your Conoco dealer today. Don't wait another day to start using this new kind of gasoline—the greatest gasoline development in 31 years!

See what Conoco Super with TCP can do for your car

Start the "TWO-TANK TEST" today

1. When your gasoline tank is one-quarter full or less, fill it with Conoco Super with TCP. Now, there will still be some ordinary gasoline mixed in with your Conoco Super, so...
2. Make sure your next tankful is Conoco Super, too. So rapidly does Conoco Super work that with this second tankful, chances are you'll feel as if your engine has had a tune-up. You'll feel a boost in power. Try it today. We're sure you'll stay with Conoco Super.
